

Listening into Writing — AI Feedback Workbook

This workbook supports the Listening into Writing practice tasks. Each practice task follows the same routine: read your teacher’s qualitative feedback, use AI for a second layer of feedback and set focused targets for the next summary.

The workbook is designed to help you become more independent. It does not ask AI to grade your work, rewrite your summary, or correct every sentence. Instead, it asks AI to point to evidence, explain patterns, and help you decide what to work on next.

Contents

Listening into Writing — AI Feedback Workbook.....	1
The Golden Rules for using AI in this course.....	2
Understanding the Listening into Writing Criteria.....	3
Practice 1: Accuracy, key points and focus.....	4
Practice 2: Structure, cohesion and linking.....	7
Practice 3: Paraphrasing, reporting language and academic style.....	10
Practice 4: Criticality, balance and assessment readiness.....	14
Cumulative progress tracker.....	17
End-of-course reflection.....	18
Prompt bank.....	19

The Golden Rules for using AI in this course

Read these once and keep them in mind every week. They protect your learning and your academic integrity.

1. You write the summary; the AI only gives feedback. Never ask it to write or rewrite your summary, a paragraph, or a sentence.
2. Never copy the AI's wording into your work. If it suggests wording, use it only to understand the issue and then write your own improvement.
3. The AI is a mirror, not a marker. It does not give you a real grade and it does not replace your teacher.
4. The AI can be wrong. Always check what it says against the marking criteria, the class materials and your teacher's feedback.
5. Ask AI to quote exact parts of your summary when it gives feedback. General comments are less useful than evidence-based feedback.
6. Share only your summary and task materials. Do not paste personal information about yourself or other people.

REMEMBER

A simple test: if the AI has produced text that could go straight into your summary, you have used it the wrong way. Ask it to point, explain and question — not to fix.

Understanding the Listening into Writing Criteria

You receive two separate marks in the assessment. This means a summary can be strong in Listening but weaker in Writing, or the other way round.

Listening	Writing
Accuracy, paraphrasing, length, content and focus: Have you represented the lecture accurately, selected the key points, avoided copying, and written at an appropriate length and depth?	Range, accuracy, style and structure: Have you written clearly and academically, used effective cohesion, and integrated supported critical comments without overgeneralising?

Start every session with the setup prompt below. Add the marking criteria, your full summary and the transcript of the listening.

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

You are my academic writing tutor. I am an international student preparing for a Listening into Writing assessment. I listened to a lecture and wrote a critical summary. I want feedback on my summary so that I can revise it myself. Very important: do not rewrite my summary, do not correct every sentence, and do not give me a grade. Point to things, explain them, ask me questions, and quote exact parts of my summary. Here are the marking criteria: [PASTE CRITERIA]. Here is my summary: [PASTE SUMMARY]. Here is the transcript of the listening: [PASTE TRANSCRIPT]. First tell me in one line that you understand, then wait for my next instruction.

Practice 1: Accuracy, key points and focus

This week is about understanding and selecting content. A strong summary does not report every detail. It represents the lecture accurately, selects the most important ideas, and avoids adding unsupported personal opinion.

By the end of this session you will have:

- Checked whether your summary represents the lecture accurately.
- Identified missing or overemphasised key points.
- Checked whether the summary is focused and appropriately detailed.
- Set a baseline for the rest of the four-practice sequence.

Part A Before you open the AI

- Without opening the AI, reread your summary.
- Circle the sentence that gives the speaker's main argument.
- Put a star next to the three most important supporting points.
- Mark any detail that may be too minor for a short summary.

My prediction — one strength and one weakness before I use AI:

Part B Read your teacher's feedback

Before using AI, read your teacher's comments carefully. Remember that your teacher gives qualitative feedback, not a grade or detailed language correction.

Teacher feedback — What went well?

Teacher feedback — What could be improved?

Part C General strengths and areas to work on

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Give me feedback on my summary using the two assessment areas: Listening and Writing. For Listening, identify strengths and areas to work on. For Writing, identify strengths and areas to work on. Quote the exact part of my summary you are talking about each time. Do not rewrite anything and do not give me a mark.

In my own words, the AI identified these strengths:

In my own words, the AI identified these areas to work on:

Part D This practice focus — accuracy, key points and focus

Main argument and key points

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Compare my summary with the listening transcript. What is the speaker's main argument, and have I captured it accurately? Identify any key points I missed, any minor details I overemphasised, and any claims that are inaccurate or too strong. Quote evidence from my summary.

My notes on main argument and key points:

Focus and length

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Does my summary include an appropriate amount of detail for the task? Point to any sentences that are too detailed, too vague, repetitive, or not clearly connected to the

THE LONDON SCHOOL OF ECONOMICS AND POLITICAL SCIENCE ■

lecture's main argument. Do not rewrite them.

My notes on focus and length:

Part E Revise and set targets

Specific improvements I can make to THIS summary:

Two targets for Practice 2:

Practice 2: Structure, cohesion and linking

This week is about how the summary is organised. A reader should be able to follow the lecture's argument through your paragraphs and linking words. Cohesion should guide the reader, not simply decorate the writing.

By the end of this session you will have:

- Checked whether your paragraphs follow a logical order.
- Identified whether each paragraph has a clear function.
- Examined how well linking words show relationships between ideas.
- Checked whether your previous targets are improving.

Part A Before you open the AI

- Reread your summary
- Underline every linking word or phrase.
- Reread your two targets from Practice 1.

My prediction — one strength and one weakness before I use AI:

Part B Read your teacher's feedback

Before using AI, read your teacher's comments carefully. Remember that your teacher gives qualitative feedback, not a grade or detailed language correction.

Teacher feedback — What went well?

Teacher feedback — What could be improved?

Part C General strengths and areas to work on

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Give me feedback on my summary using the two assessment areas: Listening and Writing. For Listening, identify strengths and areas to work on. For Writing, identify strengths and areas to work on. Quote the exact part of my summary you are talking about each time. Do not rewrite anything and do not give me a mark.

In my own words, the AI identified these strengths:

In my own words, the AI identified these areas to work on:

Part D This practice focus: structure, cohesion and linking

STRUCTURE PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Map the overall structure of my summary. Point to any place where the structure is confusing or could be improved.

My notes on structure:

COHESION PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Identify the linking words and cohesive devices in my summary. For each, tell me what relationship it signals, for example addition, contrast, cause, result, example or evaluation. Point to places where the link is missing, inaccurate or repetitive. Do not rewrite my sentences.

My notes on linking and cohesion:

Part E Progress Check

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Here is my previous summary: [PASTE]. Here is my current summary: [PASTE]. This week I was working on these two targets: [WRITE TARGETS]. Comparing the two summaries, am I doing these better now? Point to evidence in both summaries. Also identify one problem that seems to be recurring. Do not rewrite anything.

Tip: This prompt helps you identify whether a problem is improving or becoming a pattern.

Did I hit last week's targets? What is improving, and what keeps coming back?

Part F Revise and set targets

Specific improvements I can make to THIS summary:

Two targets for Practice 3:

Practice 3: Paraphrasing, reporting language and academic style

This week is about controlling the language of summary. Strong summaries depend on reporting the speaker's ideas accurately in your own words, using varied reporting verbs and an appropriate academic style.

By the end of this session you will have...

- Checked whether your wording is sufficiently different from the lecture.
- Identified places where reporting language could be more precise.
- Reviewed whether your style is academic, concise and not too conversational.
- Checked whether previous targets are becoming habits.

Part A Before you open the AI

- Highlight every reporting verb, for example argues, suggests, claims, emphasises.
- Write down your two targets from Practice 2.

My prediction — one strength and one weakness before I use AI:

Part B Read your teacher's feedback

Before using AI, read your teacher's comments carefully. Remember that your teacher gives qualitative feedback, not a grade or detailed language correction.

Teacher feedback — What went well?

Teacher feedback — What could be improved?

Part C General strengths and areas to work on

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Give me feedback on my summary using the two assessment areas: Listening and Writing. For Listening, identify strengths and areas to work on. For Writing, identify strengths and areas to work on. Quote the exact part of my summary you are talking about each time. Do not rewrite anything and do not give me a mark.

In my own words, the AI identified these strengths:

In my own words, the AI identified these areas to work on:

Part D This practice focus: paraphrasing, reporting language and academic style

PARAPHRASING PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Look for wording in my summary that may be too close to the listening. Point to the exact phrases and explain why they may be too close. Do not rewrite them. Instead, tell me what strategy I should use, for example changing sentence structure, using a more general term, or combining ideas.

My notes on paraphrasing and copying risk:

REPORTING VERBS & ACADEMIC STYLE PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

List the reporting verbs and phrases I use to introduce the speaker's ideas. Are they varied and accurate? Point to any reporting verb that is too strong, too weak, repetitive or not quite appropriate. Also identify any places where the style is too informal or not concise enough. Do not rewrite anything.

My notes on reporting verbs and academic style:

Part F Progress check

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Here is my previous summary: [PASTE]. Here is my current summary: [PASTE]. Last time I was working on these two targets: [WRITE TARGETS]. Comparing the two summaries, am I doing these better now? Point to evidence in both summaries. Also identify one problem that seems to be recurring. Do not rewrite anything.

Tip: This prompt helps you identify whether a problem is improving or becoming a pattern.

Did I hit last week's targets? What is improving, and what keeps coming back?

Part E Revise and set targets

Specific improvements I can make to THIS summary:

Two targets for Practice 4:

Practice 4: Criticality, balance and assessment readiness

This week is about moving from descriptive summary to critical summary. Critical comments should be careful, supported and connected to the lecture. They should not become unsupported personal opinion or a separate paragraph that feels added on.

By the end of this session you will have...

- Identified where your summary is descriptive and where it is evaluative.
- Checked whether critical comments are integrated with the summary.
- Reviewed cautious language and balance.
- Looked across all four practice tasks to identify progress and priorities.

Part A Before you open the AI

- Underline sentences that evaluate the speaker's argument, evidence, assumptions or limitations.
- Put brackets around sentences that are only descriptive.
- Circle cautious language, such as may, appears to, suggests, could, or however.
- Look back at your previous three target sets. Which issue has appeared more than once?
-

My prediction — one strength and one weakness before I use AI:

Part B Read your teacher's feedback

Before using AI, read your teacher's comments carefully. Remember that your teacher gives qualitative feedback, not a grade or detailed language correction.

Teacher feedback — What went well?

Teacher feedback — What could be improved?

Part C General strengths and areas to work on

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Give me feedback on my summary using the two assessment areas: Listening and Writing. For Listening, identify strengths and areas to work on. For Writing, identify strengths and areas to work on. Quote the exact part of my summary you are talking about each time. Do not rewrite anything and do not give me a mark.

In my own words, the AI identified these strengths:

In my own words, the AI identified these areas to work on:

Part D This practice focus — criticality, balance and assessment readiness

CRITICALITY AND BALANCE PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Find the places where my summary evaluates the listening rather than only reporting it. Are my critical comments supported by reference to the listening? Point to any place where I overgeneralise, add unsupported opinion, or make a critical comment that is not clearly connected to the speaker's argument.

My notes on criticality and balance:

ASSESSMENT READINESS PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Based on my four practice summaries and targets, identify three patterns I should pay attention to in the final assessment. For each pattern, point to evidence from my summaries or targets. Do not give me a grade and do not rewrite anything.

My notes on assessment readiness:

Part E Progress check

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

Here is my previous summary: [PASTE]. Here is my current summary: [PASTE]. Last time I was working on these two targets: [WRITE TARGETS]. Comparing the two summaries, am I doing these better now? Point to evidence in both summaries. Also identify one problem that seems to be recurring. Do not rewrite anything.

Tip: This prompt helps you identify whether a problem is improving or becoming a pattern.

Did I hit last week's targets? What is improving, and what keeps coming back?

Part F Revise and set targets

Specific improvements I can make to THIS summary:

Two targets for Practice 2:

Cumulative progress tracker

Use this page to follow recurring issues across the four practice tasks. A problem that appears more than once is a priority for the final assessment.

Issue / Weakness	Criteria area	P1	P2	P3	P4	Final priority?
1.
2.
3.
4.
5.
6.
7.
8.

REMEMBER
How to fill the practice columns: write ✓ if it was a problem, – if it did not appear, and → if it was better but not gone. Criteria area = Listening or Writing.

End-of-course reflection

Complete this after Practice 4, with all four summaries and target pages in front of you. This helps you decide what to carry into the real assessment, where there will be no AI feedback.

PROMPT — copy and paste this into the AI

I am going to paste four Listening into Writing summaries I wrote over four practice tasks, plus my targets after each one. Comparing them as a set, tell me: what has clearly improved from the first to the last, what weakness still appears in the most recent summary, and what two priorities I should remember in the final assessment. Point to evidence. Do not rewrite anything and do not give me a grade.

The biggest improvement across my four summaries:

The problem that is most persistent — my priority for the assessment:

Three things I will do in the assessment, where I will have no AI:

Prompt bank

Use these follow-up prompts when the AI response is vague, too positive, too negative, or too close to rewriting.

Situation	Follow-up prompt
When AI is too general	Quote the exact sentence or phrase in my summary that led you to this comment.
When AI tries to rewrite	Do not rewrite this. Explain the problem and ask me a question that will help me revise it myself.
When AI gives too much language correction	Group the language issues into patterns. Give me the rule and one example only.
When AI sounds like it is grading	Do not give me a mark. Link your feedback to the criteria and identify my next step.
When I need to prioritise	From all the feedback I received, which two issues will have the biggest impact on my next summary? Explain why.