

Paper A: Listening into Writing - Assessment Criteria

	LISTENING Accuracy, Paraphrasing, Length, Content & Focus	WRITING Range, Accuracy, Style, Criticality & Structure
80 or above	All statements report the lecture content accurately. Paraphrasing is highly successful; no more than four words in a row are copied directly from the lecture. The summary is an appropriate length. The summary covers all the key points. The summary is highly appropriate in terms of detail and depth.	The writer uses a good range of sophisticated grammar and vocabulary. There are virtually no errors in the use of grammar and vocabulary. The style is appropriate. Critical comments are well-supported and integrated with the summary, without overgeneralising or introducing unsupported personal opinion. Ideas are structured in an extremely clear and coherent manner using an excellent range of cohesive devices.
70 - 75	Most statements report the lecture content accurately. Paraphrasing is generally successful; it is rare for more than four words in a row to be copied directly from the lecture. The summary is an appropriate length. The summary covers most of the key points. The summary is appropriate in terms of detail and depth.	The language is complex and wide-ranging enough to complete the task successfully and with some sophistication. There are some language errors in the use of vocabulary, but they are all minor. The style is mostly appropriate. Critical comments are mostly supported and generally integrated with the summary, although some points may remain more descriptive than evaluative. Ideas are structured in a clear and coherent manner using a very good range of cohesive devices.

	LISTENING Accuracy, Paraphrasing, Length, Content & Focus	WRITING Range, Accuracy, Style & Structure
60 - 65	Some statements do not report the lecture content accurately. Paraphrasing is not always successful; four words in a row are often copied directly from the lecture. The summary is slightly too long/short. The summary does not cover 1-2 key points. The summary does may not cover points in appropriate depth/detail.	The language and vocabulary are complex and wide-ranging enough to complete the task satisfactorily although there may be difficulties when the topic is complex and abstract. There are some errors in the use of grammar and vocabulary. The style may not always be appropriate. The response is partly descriptive and may not consistently distinguish important points from supporting detail. Ideas are structured in a reasonably clear and coherent manner using a somewhat limited range of cohesive devices.
50 or below	Many statements report the lecture content inaccurately. Paraphrasing is not successful; sentences are copied directly from the lecture. The summary is too long/short. The summary misses more than 2 key points. The summary does not cover points in appropriate detail/depth.	The language and vocabulary are usually sufficient to complete the task although there are difficulties when the topic is complex and abstract. There are frequent errors in the use of grammar and vocabulary. The style is not always appropriate. Critical comments, if present, are unsupported, overgeneralised, or not clearly connected to the lecture content. Ideas are not structured in a clear and coherent manner; cohesive devices are used but are limited.
