

EAP Preessional – Assignment Marking Criteria

	READING	WRITING
80 or above	- Makes excellent use of a wide range of academic literature to support argument / points. - Is highly successful at adapting the content of texts to suit the purpose of writing. - Is highly successful at identifying common themes and links within and across the multiple texts. - Demonstrates excellent quotation, paraphrasing, summarising skills.	- Fulfils all task requirements and presents an excellent response to the essay question. - Sequences information and ideas very logically and effectively with very clear progression, an extensive range of cohesive devices and highly effective paragraphing. - Uses a wide range of stylistically appropriate grammar and vocabulary to convey precise meanings flexibly and fluently. - The majority of sentences are error free and any errors which do occur are minor and do not impede communication or create difficulty for the reader.
70 - 75	- Makes very good use of a range of academic literature to support argument / points. - Is successful at adapting the content of texts to suit the purpose of writing. - Is successful at identifying common themes and links within and across the multiple texts. - Demonstrates very good quotation, paraphrasing and summarising skills.	- Fulfils all, or most, task requirements and presents a very good response to the essay question. - Sequences information and ideas logically and effectively with clear progression, a wide range of cohesive devices and highly effective paragraphing. - Uses a good range of stylistically appropriate grammar and vocabulary to convey meaning with a degree of flexibility and precision. - Occasional errors may occur, but these do not impede communication or create much strain for the reader; overall, control of grammar, punctuation and lexical items is good.

EAP Preessional – Assignment Marking Criteria

	READING	WRITING
60 - 65	- Makes good use of literature to support argument / points. - Is reasonably successful at adapting the content of texts to suit the purpose of writing. - Is reasonably successful at identifying common themes and links within and across the multiple texts but tends to be descriptive. - Demonstrates reasonable quotation, paraphrasing and summarising skills.	- Fulfils most task requirements and presents a reasonable response to the essay question. - Sequences information and ideas quite logically and effectively with generally clear progression, a range of cohesive devices and reasonably effective paragraphing. - Uses a sufficient range of grammar and vocabulary for the task but may lack flexibility, style, and/or precision. - Errors in grammar and punctuation exist but rarely impede communication or create strain for the reader.
50 or below	- Makes some use of literature to support argument / points but this could be improved. - Is not entirely successful at adapting the content of texts to suit the purpose of writing. - Is not entirely successful at identifying common themes and links within and across the multiple texts and is often descriptive. - Makes some errors with quotation, paraphrasing and summarising skills.	- Does not fulfil all task requirements; presents an inadequate response to the essay question. - Does not always sequence information and ideas logically or effectively, has a limited range of cohesive devices and does not always demonstrate effective paragraphing. - Uses a limited range of grammar and vocabulary for the task; may lack flexibility, style, and/or precision. - Errors in grammar and vocabulary do not generally impede communication but may cause some strain for the reader.